1. Beta Status

Nodrive is distributed as Beta / Early Access for testing, evaluation and product improvement. The Beta is free and may contain errors, incomplete features, incompatibilities, interface or data-format changes, interruptions and non-final performance characteristics.

2. Storage Available in the Beta

- Local storage: PC, HDD/SSD, USB or another local destination selected by the user.
- “Your storage”: a third-party provider or infrastructure already owned/configured by the user, such as Google Drive, WebDAV, NAS or other supported connectors.
- Nodrive Cloud / Hosted is not available in this Beta.

3. Independent Backup

Do not use Nodrive as the only copy

Keep at least one independent, verified backup of data you cannot afford to lose. Periodically check that the backup can actually be restored.

4. Password, Recovery and Moving to a New PC

- Protect the password, recovery key and device against unauthorised access, malware and keyloggers.
- The wrapped User Key in the current Beta remains on the local device; the backend is not a recovery copy of the key.
- Loss of the password together with the available recovery mechanisms may make data unrecoverable.
- Before changing PC, reinstalling or deleting Nodrive local data, create and verify an Export backup where available and keep the recovery key.

5. Third-Party Providers

When using Google Drive or another external storage service, the service belongs to the provider and to your account. Nodrive does not control quota, suspensions, availability, API limits, retention or contractual changes of that provider. For Google Drive, Nodrive uses a local OAuth token and does not know the Google password.

6. Availability and Support

No SLA is provided. Updates, maintenance or backend issues may temporarily limit account or support functions. Beta support is available at info@nodrive.cloud.

7. Acknowledgement of the Beta Notice

During first access or the relevant app flow, users should be able to separately confirm that they understand the Beta limitations and the need to keep an independent copy of important data.
